

URBAN HEALTH AND SOCIETY

Interdisciplinary Approaches to Research and Practice

NICHOLAS FREUDENBERG • SUSAN KLITZMAN • SUSAN SAEGERT EDITORS

10	IMMIGRANTS AND URBAN AGING: TOWARD A POLICY FRAMEWORK	239
	Marianne Fahs, Anahí Viladrich, Nina S. Parikh
	The New Urban Demography: Baby Boomers and Immigrants	240
	Economic and Social Influences on Aging and Health Policy	242
	Social and Environmental Considerations	246
	Toward a Conceptual Framework	254
	A Public Health Research and Policy Agenda	255
	Summary	258
11	REVERSING THE TIDE OF TYPE 2 DIABETES AMONG AFRICAN AMERICANS THROUGH INTERDISCIPLINARY RESEARCH	271
	Hollie Jones, Leandris C. Liburd
	A Dialogue Between Two Disciplines: Psychology and Medical Anthropology	273
	Ethnic Identity and the Experience of Being African American with Type 2 Diabetes	278
	Interdisciplinary Research Methods	281
	Integrating Social Psychology and Medical Anthropology to Reduce the Burden of Diabetes	284
	Summary	285
 PART FOUR
	PUTTING INTERDISCIPLINARY APPROACHES INTO PRACTICE	293
12	USING INTERDISCIPLINARY APPROACHES TO STRENGTHEN URBAN HEALTH RESEARCH AND PRACTICE	295
	Nicholas Freudenberg, Susan Klitzman, Susan Saegert
	Doing Interdisciplinary Research and Practice	296
	Defining the Problem	299
	Creating a Process for Interdisciplinary Work	302

